University of CUMBRIA

As new courses are developed, they go through a rigorous approval process to ensure that they meets needs of students, employers and other stakeholders. Additionally all courses undergo a periodic review on a rolling basis to ensure their continuing currency and quality. This process is managed through a planned schedule of approval events. Where courses are awaiting their turn in the approval cycle they are shown as 'subject to validation' and some fuller detail of the course may not yet be available. As soon as the new award is validated, full details are provided through the detailed Programme Specification being made available through the course webpages.
